

Daniel Kurgan Joins IPification As Founder Advisor

HONG KONG - August 5, 2021 - Daniel Kurgan, an accomplished and well-rounded intrapreneur CEO, is joining IPification as Founder Advisor. In his new role with the next-generation mobile identity solutions provider, he will offer his relevant industry expertise, mentoring, and networking connections to the company.

Daniel has more than 20 years of experience in the telecommunications industry during which he has started BICS, the joining venture between three telecom service providers, Proximus, Swisscom, and MTN, and turned it into a world leader with 25% market share globally.

Having successfully worked with global leading telecom operators, Internet and OTT players on the planet, Daniel has a lot to contribute to IPification.

IPification is a fast-growing provider of passwordless, one-click mobile identity solutions that streamline registration, authentication, and transaction verification processes by improving the security, and user experience of mobile apps while ensuring user data is kept private. IPification solutions today reach more than 1.5 billion devices in 20 markets globally.

“With his impressive and highly-relevant portfolio, Daniel is the perfect addition to IPification, said Harry Cheung, Founder and President of IPification. “The time when IPification is exponentially growing is the right time to get Daniel on board, and I am sure his skill set and experience will prove invaluable to the company.”

“As a highly driven and enthusiastic person, I value working with companies and partners that have the same kind of drive and ambition that I embody,” added Daniel Kurgan. “With their innovative mobile identity solutions and impressive track record so far, I am excited to dive into the mobile authentication revolution!”
